Technical Accounting & Financial Reporting Services

Helping You Meet Complex Technical Accounting, Financial Reporting, and Operational Challenges
Ask Yourself...

- Does your team have the time they need to keep up with changes in GAAP to address your company’s complex accounting issues?
- Do you readily know the answers to the reporting implications of the transaction your company is about to close?
- Do you know where to begin to assess the financial statement impacts of adopting a new accounting standard and the resulting operational and internal control effects?

Keeping current with and understanding accounting standards and financial reporting guidance requires in-depth knowledge and expertise from technical accountants, which can be difficult for even the most capable finance and accounting teams.

How can we help you navigate your challenges?

No matter where your company is in the business life cycle, from startup to exit and all the stages in between, it’s likely you will be challenged with complex accounting, financial reporting, or regulatory matters. Companies often do not have adequate resources to handle these challenges and, in turn, rely on MorganFranklin’s technical accounting and financial reporting service line to tackle these challenges head on, including:

- Providing timely answers to technical accounting questions
- Assessing and implementing new accounting standards
- Preparing financial statements and SEC filings (e.g., Form S-1, Form 10-Q, Form 10-K)
- Assisting with transaction-related demands (e.g., valuation, purchase accounting, carveouts)
- Preparing for an audit
- Liaising with your auditors to address complex accounting and related internal control challenges
- Stepping in to fill day-to-day operational needs
- Translating and operationalizing a change in accounting guidance to your business
- Assessing the design and effectiveness of your internal controls environment
We provide hands-on assistance using a flexible approach that allows us to customize the project to your specific needs and adapt to any changes along the way.

Our team of experienced professionals and seasoned experts help you anticipate and respond to technical accounting challenges. At MorganFranklin, we develop service offerings that address our client's immediate challenges and are adaptable to tackle ongoing technical accounting and financial reporting needs.

We view technical accounting and financial reporting to be more than just debits, credits, and disclosures. We certainly solve these issues, but we do so by taking a comprehensive approach with services that address each business’s unique set of obstacles and challenges. The following are additional capabilities and areas of expertise we offer in conjunction with our technical accounting and financial reporting service line:
